- 06 One Meat Ball
- 04 Knock Me A Kiss - v IJ
- 02 Let's Hop - band vocal
- 01 Signoff & theme: One O'Clock Jump (nc)

- 01 AFRS studio orchestra
No details.

- 02 Claude Hopkins and his orchestra

Probably Nathanael Courtney Williams, Kenneth Roane, trumpets; Jimmy Archey, Floyd "Stumpy" Brady, trombones; Rudy Powell, alto sax; Joe Garland, Elbert "Skippy" Williams, tenor saxes; Ernest "Pinky" Williams, baritone & alto saxes; Claude Hopkins, piano; Eddie Gibbs, guitar; John Benjamin Peabody Brown, string bass; Wilbert Kirk, drums; band vocal.

NOTE: Ida James states that the Hopkins orchestra is at the "Zanzibar" at present. Rudy Powell can be aurally identified as alto sax soloist on "Let's Hop". Discographers have always listed Nathanael Williams and Courtney Williams separately, but it is one and the same person, according to Jean-Pierre Battestini, who interviewed him in the late 1980s.

- 03 Stuff Smith Trio
Stuff Smith, violin; Jimmy Jones, piano; John O. Levy, string bass.

- 04 Ida James

Ida James, vocal acc. by Phil Moore and his orchestra: Johnny Letman, trumpet; clarinet; alto sax; Phil Moore, piano; Remo Palmieri, guitar; Doles Dickens, string bass; Wallace Henry "Bish" Bishop, drums.

NOTE: Palmieri was with Moore at the "Cafe Society" from November 1944 to February 1945. Letman and Bishop joined Moore about November 1944.

- 05 Dorothy Donegan
Dorothy Donegan, piano soloist.

- 06 Josh White

Josh White, vocal & guitar, acc. by John Jacob Simmons, string bass.
NOTE. It is announced that Josh White is presently appearing at the "Cafe Society".

NOTE: Ralph Cooper mentions that the Hopkins orchestra has been on Jubilee shows for "the last three weeks". "Boogie Beat" might not be the correct title for the final instrumental although it is announced thus.

- 03 Stuff Smith Trio

Stuff Smith, violin & vocal; Jimmy Jones, piano; John O. Levy, string bass.
NOTE: "Stop, Look" is not the same tune as "Stomp, Look And Listen".

- 04 Ralph Cooper & "Pigmeat" Alamo Markham

Comedy skit. Both Cooper and Markham are from the "Elk's Rendezvous" show. "Pigmeat" uses Cooper as straight man.

- 05 Dorothy Donegan

Dorothy Donegan, piano soloist. A big band, probably Hopkins' comes in for the final flourish only.
NOTE: Ralph Cooper relates: "We went over the to "Zanzibar" last night, and the piano playing of Dorothy Donegan had the customers hanging by their thumbs, swinging from their collarbones, and jiving from their eyebrows...".

- 06 Dan Burley, Ralph Cooper & "Colonel Stoopnagle" ("Henry Wadsworth Fatpole")
Comedy skit.

NOTE: Pianist and journalist Dan Burley is the author of the "Original Handbook Of Harlem Jive", first published in 1944. "Colonel Stoopnagle" was a comedian of early radio who worked with a partner as "Stoopnagle and Budd".

NOTE: Some sources say that the recording session took place at the McGregor studios, Hollywood. The version of "Her Tears Flowed Like Wine" on side one is intentionally partial to enable Whitman to make a "cued-in" introduction for the writer of the song, Joe Greene, followed by a scripted discussion about Greene's intention of writing the song lyrics. The following performance of "Tears" is complete and original and not an extension of the previously performed, incomplete take. (Müller & Pirie, "Stan Kenton", page 40).

NOTE: Rainer Lotz: "It is almost certainly not Freddie Greene who plays the solo on "Call Me Darling". Green has always played acoustic guitar while it sounds on this title like that strange electric instrument (looking like a zither) which Alvino Rey used to play. Ray was married to Louise King, one of the sisters. On "For You" the instrument audible behind the vocal sounds like a harp."

- 01 The Jungleers
Unidentified colored big band consisting of 3 trumpets, 2 trombones, 3 reeds, piano, guitar, string bass, drums under the direction of Sgt. "Broadway," featuring Belford Hendricks, trumpet.
NOTE: (1) MC Ernest Whitman introduces this group as "a combo straight from three years of overseas service at ? training center in the Middle Pacific." However, this is a big band, not a combo. Poor "miking" of the band gives us an over-recorded bass drum.
(2) Belford Hendricks became known later on as arranger for many Mercury sessions (with Dinah Washington, among others), so he was probably the arranger for The Jungleers.

- 02 Oscar Pettiford Trio
Oscar Pettiford, string bass soloist, acc. by piano; guitar.
NOTE: While in California during 1945, Pettiford worked with Boyd Raeburn and Coleman Hawkins and led own combos. In November 1945 he joined Duke Ellington.

Allan Reuss, guitar; Frank Clarke, string bass; Ray Hagen, drums, Jimmy Mundy, arranger.
LOTZ: By this time, Irving Ashby, guitar, may have replaced Reuss. BO SCHERMAN: Hard to say, since there are no guitar solos, but the accompaniment sounds more like Reuss to me.

- 02 Erroll Garner
Erroll Garner, piano soloist.

- 03 Robert Maxwell Jazz Quartet
Robert Maxwell, harp; piano; string bass; drums; unidentified big band with strings.

LOTZ: Some sources claim this to be the Milton Delaney [DeLugg] Jazz Quartet or the Saldu Jazz Quartet.
BO SCHERMAN: Ernest Whitman introduces him as "Robert Maxwell" on the medley. On "The Man I Love", Whitman introduces the group as something that sounds like "The Salon Jazz Quartet."

The instrumentation is flute, harp, accordion, violin, piano, string bass and drums. So it is in fact larger than a quartet. There is no vocal.

- 04 Nat "King" Cole Trio

Nat "King" Cole, piano & vocal; Oscar Moore, guitar; Johnny Miller, string bass;

NOTE: George Handy arranged the "Jazz Symphony".

Raeburn: "And now George is going to conduct the first two movements from his new Jazz Symphony as a Jubilee premiere. In essence this is jazz, but you'll hear such familiar symphonic instruments as the oboe, bassoon, harp - all playing in a jazz manner".

However, "Dalvatore Sally" was already recorded for Ben Pollack's Jewel label around February 1946.

Whitman: "And now the fourth movement was written by Flora Ann Morse, Ella Mae Morse's baby sister. And the title of the fourth movement is Keith".

However, the correct spelling is "Keif".

The Raeburn orchestra toured Texas during April-May 1946, opened at the "Club Morocco" in Hollywood, June 27, 1946.
